ABSTRACT

LLamasoft, the global leader in Supply Chain Design, will be making a major announcement about the future of simulation. In our experience a large number of simulation studies end with good modeling and a bevy of data, but do not lead to driving changes in the business. To that end the presentation will explore the future of simulation optimization capabilities, scaling simulation to meet big data needs, using simulation to provide actionable information not just data to a user, and simulation in a cloud environment with the goal of driving impactful change to the business.
